TOBACCO SALES ARE REPORTED

Between 150,000 and 175,000 Pounds Sold at Prices From $18.75 to As Low at $3.50.

The sale of tobacco was opened at the Planters' Loose Leaf Warehouse promptly at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning. There was between 150,-000 and 175,000 pounds sold. The grade was very dark and mean, with the exception of two or three crops, whic hwere of medium color.

Among the crops that were sold was one belonging to J. C. Bryan & Son, of the North Middletown precinct, for which they received an average of $6.44. The highest prices that they were ever offered in the country was an average of $4.35. After all expenses for selling Mr. Bryan received $1.85 on the hundred in excess what he had been offered.

The prices ranged from $18.75 per hundred as low as $3.50.

Among the best crops that were sold Tuesday morning was one belonging to Mr. T. W. Rash, of this county, which averaged $12.75 per hundred. Mr. Rash was wel pleased with the price.

There will be sales every day this week and both houses report receipts as continuing very heavy.

Much enthusiasm is being show and a good number of buyers are at tending each day.

BELOVED YOUNG WINCHESTER LADY

Health of Miss Gipson Fox Broken Down by Strain of Tireless Energy.—Friends Pray For Recovery

Miss Gipson Fox, until recently a eacher in the Winchester Public Schools, was Tuesday morning adjudged insane. She was taken to Lexington in an auto for rest and recuperation.

Miss Fox is one of the loveliest young ladies in Winchester. Gentle and charming always, she was tenderly loved by schoolmates and teachers and in later years by her pupils with a true and abiding affection.

Ill health and her tireless energy ere the causes of the trouble, and it is the earnest prayer of all her friends, that she will soon be restored to a normal condition.

RE-COMMIT BILL

Sixteen Democrats and Four Republicans Fellow Lead of Louis W. At nett and Louisville Legislators.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 23 .- The County Unit bill drawn in conformity with the provisions of the County Unit plank of the Democratic platform was reported favorably Monday by the County Unit and Liquor Regulations Committee of the Senate, but was re-committed to the committee by a vote of 20 to 16. Sixteen Democrats and four Republicans out-voted fourteen Democrats and two Republicans.

Senator Salmon moved to recommit the bill to be reported Thursday at 11 o'clock.

Brock Changes His Vote

Senator Brock, a Republican, voted not to recommit the bill and changed his vote.

The Democrats favoring the passage of the bill declared that every Senator was obligated by their party platforms to support this County Unit Bill, and some of the Senators opposing the bill stated that they did not think this bill was constitutional although Senators Moody, Thomas

Senate bill 18 was reported favorably by Senator Graham from the Committee on County Unit.

Senator Huffaker, of Louisville, said the County Unit Committee had never held a meeting to discuss the bill and as several other County Unit bills had been introduced and not considered. He moved to recommit the bill.

Senator Thomas said any Demoerat who voted to delay this bill was "spitting in the face of the party." In answer to a question he said he never promised in his campaign to take no part in urging the passage of the County Unit bill. He said if he had been elected on a platform opposed to County Unit extension he would resign before he would vote against this bill, after his party had endorsed it.

Senator Lewis Arnett said rules of the Democratic caucus in Washington provided that where a Senator believed a bill unconstitutional and that his constituents were opposed to it, he was not bound by a party platform or caucus action. He said he had asked for a hearing before the County Unit Committee on this bill and was told that he would be given a hearing, but no hearing was given to him.

THREE-YEAR-OLD CHILD WAS LOST

Parents Left Child in Cab. Each Thinking The Other Had Him In Charge.

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 23.-Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Cook, of Sixth street, had a thrilling experience a day or two ago, when for more than an hour their little three-year-old son, C. B. Cook, Jr., was lost and his whereabouts unknown to the parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Cook and their child were returning to their home from a visit to Mr. Cook's mother, Mrs. M. L. Cook, 235 South Limestone street, and took a cab to their home. When they entered the house they missed the child. Mr. Cook had expected his wife to bring the child from the cab. while she thought he had it in his possession. Realizing that the youngster had been left in the carriage, both made a rush to the telephone, and called up the transfer company. The carriage had not yet arrived and for nearly an hour fears of kidnapers, runaway horses and desperate accidents almost crazed the parents, while at the same time the youngster was peacefully enjoying his ride in the cab.

LABORER DIES

Was Engaged in Friendly Game of Cards, When He Suddenly Fell Over Dead.

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 23 .- Just after having finished drinking a bottle of Coca Cola, and while engaged in a game of cards with several friends Samuel Sparks, a laborer at the Old Tarr distillery, and whose home is on Jane street, dropped over dead at 11 o'clock Monday night in the saloon of Walter Harper, 933 West High street.

Sparks had no intimation of his aproaching death, and was laughing engaged in a social card game with friends when he suddenly fell over on a table. Death was instantaneous, and was supposed to have been the result of apoplexy. A number of men were in the saloon, and the police patrol wagon was called and the body removed to Sparks' home on Jane stret, a short thoroughfare which runs off of West High street, near the crossing of the Queen & Crescent railway tracks.

Sparks was about 45 years old, and is survived by his widow, Mrs. Mollie Sparks. He was employed as a cattle feeder by Simon Weil at the Tarr distillery in the West End.

Beautiful Scottish Photo Play Will Be Shown At The Lyric On Wednesday, Matnnee and Night.

Auld Lang Syne, to be shown or canvass at the Lyric Theatre Wedesday afternoon and night, is a two reel picture of a picturesque story of the Highlands of Scotland, based upon the sweet and noble sentiment of "Auld Lang Syne."

Two typical Scotch lads, vigorous with the warmth of reekbound friendship, cemented with the association of membership in the same clan, are equally smitten with the blandishments of Jennie, a truly winsome Scotch lassie.

The picture is rich with natural ness; scenery and location are exceedingly real, while the portrayal of Scotch life is most thorough and

NEW NEWS OF YESTERDAY

Reconciliation of General Grant and James G. Blaine.

How the Two Great Men, Estranged Several Years, Became Friends Again Through the Efforts of Elkins.

By E. J. EDWARDS.

I recently told in this column the story of the manner in which General Grant and James G. Blaine met at the Long Branch railway station at the time of the funeral of President Garfield, rode in the same carriage to the house of national mourning, were seated almost side by side at the funeral and yet absolutely ignored the presence each of the other. There was not the slightest sign of recognition or even the most formal or cold courtesy exchanged between them.

Only a few of the politicians of the eighties knew that General Grant and James G. Blaine had by tacit understanding agreed absolutely to ignore the presence of each other whenever they chanced to meet. To these knowing ones the presumption was that the breaking of all relations between the two men was due to the fact that the friends of Blaine prevented the third presidential nomination of Grant at Chicago in 1880 and the friends of Grant prevented the nomination of Blaine at the time. The estrangement of the two men at the time of the Garfield funeral was so complete that no one thought of a reconciliation between them.

Yet less than two years later these two distinguished Republicans were brought together and spent an hour or more in resuming the cordial relations which had existed between them when James G. Blaine was speaker of the house of representatives and Ulysses S. Grant was president of the United States. I am sure that the story of this reconciliation and the manner in which it was brought about have never been publicly told; in fact, very few of the intimate friends of either Grant or Blaine knew, until after Grant's death, in 1885, that cordial relations had been re-established.

Stephen B. Elkins of West Virginia who recently died while a member of the United States Senate, was one of the very few prominent Republican who maintained a close personal intimacy with both Grant and Blaine during the period of their personal estrangement. Mr. Elkins used some times to say to his friends that nothing was a source of greater sorrow to him than the fact that these two warm friends of his had become absolutely alienated.

Some time in the latter part of the year 1882, or it may have been early in 1883, Mr. Elkins became persuaded that both Grant and Blaine would be glad if a way could be found by which they could be brought into pleasant relations once more. Mr. Elkins said to a member of General Garfield's official family:

"I am sure that General Grant ould rejoice if he could make it un with Blaine, and I am certain that Blaine has grieved greatly over the misunderstanding which has interrunt ed the friendship long maintained with Grant. I am going to bring those two men together, although I don't know exactly how to do it.'

'Why don't you invite them to dine with you?" Elkins was asked

"No, that wouldn't do," was the reply. "Each man would suspect that the other had put me up to that. think there is a little pride that stands in the way of their reconcilia-

A few days later Mr. Elkins said that he had given the matter much thought and he was satisfied that the only way to bring about the reconciliation was to cause Blaine and Grant to meet as though by pure chance. It was evident to Elkins' confidant that Elkins was planning already what would appear to be an accidental, unexpected meeting between Grant and Blaine. A day or two later Mr. Elkins appeared before his confidant again, and he was as radiant as a

"I am the happiest man in Wash ington," he cried. "I left Grant and Blaine yesterday afternoon sitting side by side, engaged in the most kindly and familiar conversation. You know. Grant came to Washington a Blaine for some time now has been occupied with getting together ma to write, a sort of reminiscence of his life as a member of congress. Those two incidents-Grant's arrival and Blaine's book-gave me the hint for

Elkins was asked how he accor plished the meeting so that neither Blaine nor Grant would be suspicious

"No, no, I shall never tell that those two men must never suspect that they met except by accident," Elkins declared with great positiveness. "If I should tell it to one person how they met I should be likely to tell it bottle with me." to another, and that would spoil the incident."

And so far as I know Elkins never told to anyone how he brought about METALS ONCE RARE the meeting between Blaine and Grant-a meeting that resulted in perfect reconciliation, so that from that day forth, until the death of General Grant, the two remained fast friends. Company Was Fortunate to Partici at 10 o'clock a. m., the following perpate in Several Expeditions and Won Much Distinction.

Governor Randall called for the Twelfth Wisconsin some time in September, 1861, and it was organized at Camp Randall in October, with Col George E. Bryant in command and De Witt C. Poole, now in the regular army, as lieutenant colonel, both of whom had served in the First Wiscon sin, writes Lieut, Col. J. A. Watrous U. S. A., in the Milwaukee Sentinel

"Who shall be major?" was asked. The governor was disposed to go to one of the regiments that had gone out soon after Lincoln's first call for that officer. Early in September the Second Wis consin infantry moved from Camp Kalorama, then several miles from the center of Washington, but now a beau tiful portion of the capital city, to farms will be rented to highest bid-Chain Bridge, and from there across the Potomac river into Virginia, where it was expected that the enemy was preparing to fight.

It was customary for officers in that vicinity to ride out toward the Confederate line to investigate and see the sights. One warm afternoon Capt kind, at that time, was a big thing. Governor Randall and other Wisconsin people had seen the accounts of Captain Strong's encounter with the enemy and it did not take long to decide that he should be major of the new regiment then forming, and he was appointed. The major was soon detailed as an inspecting officer and on special duty most of the time, reaching the responsible place of inspector general of the Sevententh corps. At the end of the war he was a brevet brigadier general.

The Twelfth left Madison the sec ond week in January, 1862, and went direct to Weston, Mo., traveling from Hannibal, 236 miles, in open freight cars when the thermometer indicated 15 degrees below zero, and there was no fire in the cars. It did a great deal of guard duty in Missouri and Kansas, and participated in various expeditions until May of that year, when it went to Tennessee. It was its fortune to participate in several important raids and to be assigned to responsible positions in that state during the next three months. In these faids the Twelfth ran up against the enemy several times and won a good name. the bookkeeper, sympathetically.
